On June 16–18, the fourth CyberGen conference was held at the Central Bank's Dilijan Training and Research Center. The event was jointly organized by the Central Bank of Armenia, the Information Systems Agency of Armenia, the French University in Armenia, and the Enterprise Incubator Foundation's CyHub Armenia.

The conference focused on strategic cybersecurity challenges, featuring presentations on risk management by representatives of well-known organizations with significant contributions to the field.

Special guests included the Deputy Ambassador of the United Kingdom in Armenia, as well as representatives of renowned companies such as Microsoft, Google Cloud, SimSpace, and Kaspersky.

Bringing together professionals and experts in one place, the aim of CYBERGEN 2025 was to create an effective platform for discussions and knowledge sharing on cutting-edge cybersecurity technologies and systems, as well as mechanisms for managing threats and risks.

This year, the conference hosted over 300 participants from 126 organizations across 18 countries, including Armenia.

Cybersecurity week will conclude on June 20–22 with a Bug Bounty event. As part of this initiative, teams of Armenian cybersecurity specialists will test the defenses of three banks, one payment processing company, and one tech company that provides technological solutions to various government agencies in Armenia.
